FRAMED – Product Rules

Begin by calculating the amount of frames you will need

- Specify starter/end frames at the ends of a run
- Specify add on frames between starter/ends and corners
- Corner frames allow the storage to run in multiple directions – two way (L shape) three way (T shape) / four way (cross shape)
- Each frame comes in five different heights – 29", 41", 54", 66" and 80"

Calculate the amount of connector bars you will need

- The connector bars link the frames together
- 1 pack of connector bars is needed between starter, add on, and end frames
- Corner frames are supplied with connector bars

When specifying a junction (two way, three way, four way), the height must match the tallest option of the base frame that connects to it

- For example, a 80" high base frame to be specified with a 80"H junction

Inline base cover plates to be specified when selecting primary floating base storage

- Corners always require a ‘corner base cover plate’ as there is no option for base storage in a corner

A primary base storage or primary floating base storage must be specified for each bay

- Base storage runs from the ground up
- Floating base storage creates a gap between the base plate and the storage unit

After primary storage is chosen move onto specifying secondary storage

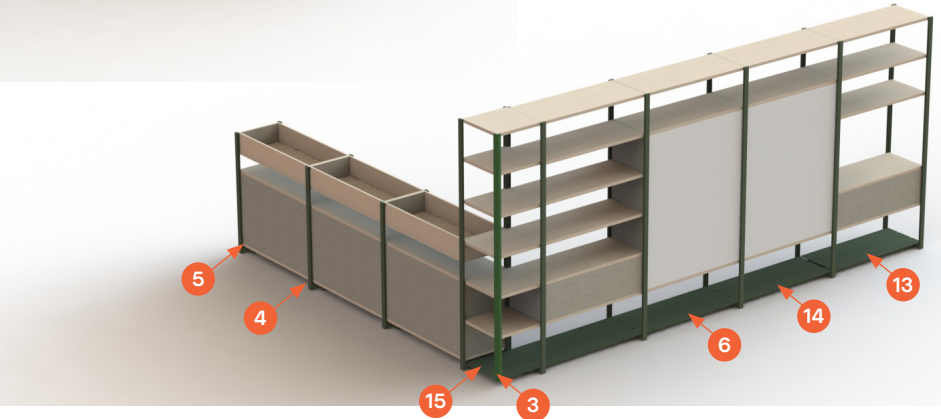

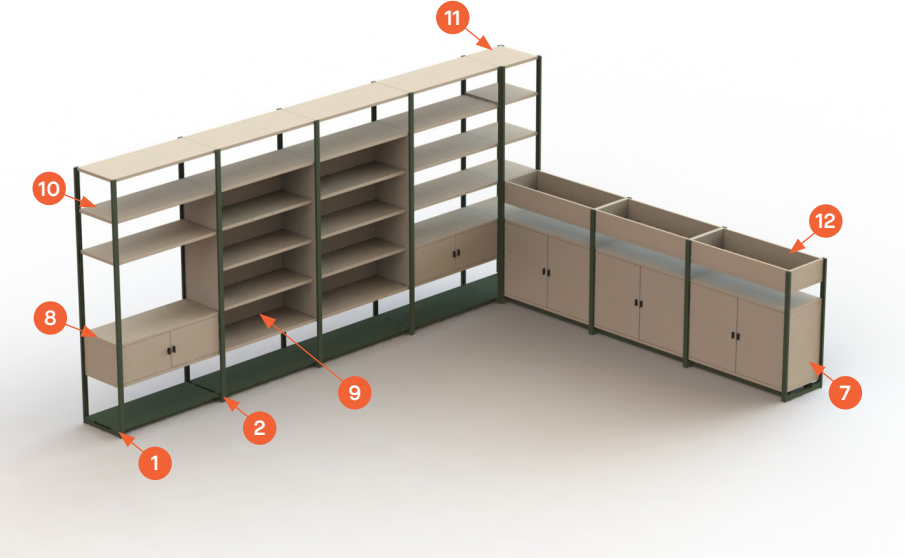

- Secondary storage consists of shelves, planters and single module height cupboards

The following rules apply when specifying secondary storage units

- When specifying secondary storage the maximum open space between two units must not exceed 4 pin positions (26")
- There must always be a gap between stacked storage units, the only exception is when using a storage top planter
- Storage units may not extend beyond the top of the frame
- The top position of a 80"H unit can only be taken up by a shelf or a planter
