From research we conducted prior to the pandemic one of the key takeaways was the desire for office based workers to have a place for private focused activity. For collaborative teams to have a space to gather away from their desk based environments so they could get creative without disturbing their colleagues.

Roll forward to today and whilst the role of the office has shifted, right now, these requirements remain unchanged and in many cases the change in the way we now work has made them even more relevant. HideAway Pods provide the perfect solution for these
